

So that the first task is to win something, and the second, after the something has been won, to forget about it, otherwise it becomes a burden.